Internet conditions

The Internet works as a decentralized network with the temporary storage and distribution of temporary data. There is therefore currently no guarantee for the exclusion of manipulation, accidental falsification and the use of only current data (e.g. old version still in the cache) on the connection path from provider to user. We therefore point out this system-related restriction as follows: You receive this data under the conditions of the Internet. No guarantee can be given for the accuracy of the information or the correspondence with the original data.

Page content and links

These pages serve commercial purposes but are free of commercial advertising. All links that are directly on my pages are checked regularly and no illegal or prohibited content has been discovered so far. Nevertheless, I would like to point out that I have no influence on the content or design of the linked pages. Therefore, I hereby expressly distance myself from all content on all pages that are linked from my pages. I do not adopt the contents of these pages as my own. This declaration applies to all links on my pages and to the content of all pages to which the links lead.

Disclaimer

Despite careful control of content, I assume no liability for the content of external links. The operators are solely responsible for the content of the linked pages.
